Coping and love eases the path of a sufferer.

Alzheimers is in the news—how to prevent it with diet, exercise and even brain gyms. Here you will find no prevention just a simple story of coping and love while a family member descends into the disease that is Alzheimers.

'Til Death Do Us Part, is the commemoration of a daughter's love and admiration for her father and mother. Suzanne Johnson recognized the enduring love that her father always showed for her mother and uses this book to tell the world of that love. Even as Alzheimers piece-by-piece removed the woman that he loved, Suzanne's father still held her dear. His struggles while dealing with his wife's devastating disease is a story of respect, endurance, and always, love.

About the author:

This is Suzanne Johnson's first book. Johnson currently teaches in a local child learning center and has worked as an aide for disabled children in the public schools. Her experience with disabilities and her prior career of nursing with the elderly, give Johnson a unique awareness of personal and family needs when dealing with physical and emotional limitations. Johnson lives in Maine with her husband of 32 years. They have two wonderful adult children and a lovable black lab.
